

Sustainability communication internship/PR, JLS

The Office of Sustainability is seeking a communication student for a practical experience internship. This is a non-paid internship; however, the student will receive academic credit. Projects can start in the fall 2008 semester and will be on-going.

The communication intern will write press releases, do publicity and work on the Sustainability website.

The program is open to either undergraduate or graduate students. The Office of Sustainability has space to house the intern.

Other sustainability project ideas are welcome.
