Tom Flynn has been recounting the history of the year-end holidays—and offering his rollicking rationale for why secular humanists should just sit out the merriment—since his book The Trouble with Christmas was published in 1993.

Now Tom has reconceived his talk as a lavish PowerPoint presentation with almost 300 slides. He’ll examine where our most treasured holiday traditions came from—from the Christ Child to Santa Claus, from the wassail bowl to the tannenbaum—and ask whether there’s still time to send them back.

DON’T MISS IT!

Tom Flynn is executive director of the Council for Secular Humanism and editor of its magazine, Free Inquiry, the nation’s largest-circulation secular humanist journal. He is an outspoken secular humanist activist. He cofounded the newsletter Secular Humanist Bulletin and designed the museum at the birthplace of 19th century agnostic orator Robert Green Ingersoll in Dresden, New York. He is co-founder of the Freethought Trail. He has written or edited four published books: a 1993 polemic, The Trouble With Christmas, two irreverent science fiction novels, and (as editor) The New Encyclopedia of Unbelief. Most recently, he is executive producer of the Council for Secular Humanism’s new four-part video miniseries, American Freethought. Flynn has been listed in Who’s Who, Who’s Who in the East, Who’s Who in Entertainment, Strathmore’s Who’s Who, and Who’s Who in Hell.
