This presentation will explore the extent to which the Next Generation Science Standards are actualized in classroom versions of scientific activity.

Todd Campbell is an Associate Professor of Science Education in the Department of Curriculum and Instruction at the University of Connecticut. His research focuses on teaching and learning in science education.

Questions? 928-523-3618 | Ron.Gray@nau.edu